JUDGING AND SELECTING

LIVE ANIMAL STOCK TONIGHT

by Harvey Kathy

Head of the Agriculturists

Department at Palomar High

School

The following is a rewrite of the article appearing in the "What's

In" column of the "Antelope Valley Press" for the week ending July 25.

Kathy, a graduate of the University of California, is a member of the Animal

Sciences staff at Palomar High School.

The first category of judging for the fourth 4-H meeting of the New Year will be "Judging and Selecting Live Animal stock tonight." Kathy will discuss the basic principles of judging livestock and the criteria used in evaluating animals.

Kathy will stress the importance of carefully observing and evaluating the animals to determine their quality and potential for future production.

Kathy will also cover the different types of livestock judging, including showmanship, modeling, and production judging.

Kathy will provide practical guidelines and tips for judging livestock effectively.

Kathy will conclude the meeting by answering any questions from the audience.
